The story here is similar to the mass rally in Germany that happened the other day. It's something like a constant mobilization of the same (transnational) crowd doing the same thing, wash, rinse, repeat. 🧵 /1

The "Anti-War" rally in DC today features:

- Multiple Holocaust deniers, including a LaRouchite
- Multiple cash awardees of the Syrian Nazi Party
- Politicians who went to Syria on a Syria Nazi Party supporter's dime
- Russian-backed journalists
- Careerist genocide deniers

The other day, the WashPo published a story about a similar rally in Munich:
"demonstrations draw a radicalized fringe, with the antiwar protests taken up by many of the same organizers as anti-lockdown demonstrations during the pandemic" /2

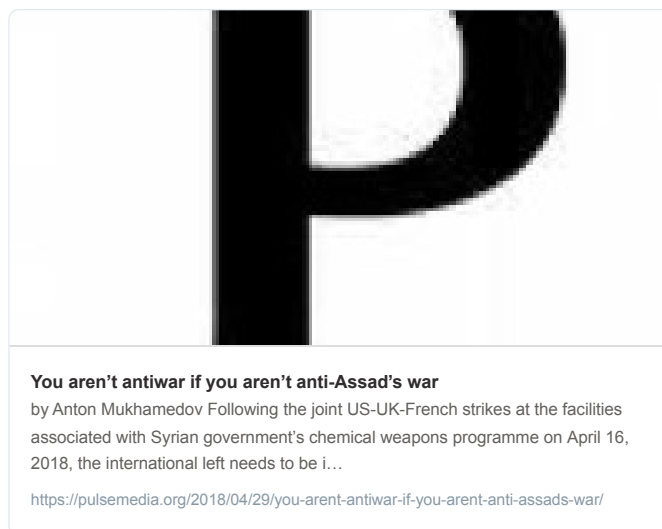

<https://www.washingtonpost.com/world/2023/02/18/munich-security-conference-protests/>

You'll note that the WashPo makes reference to fascists and other far-right groups engaging in these demonstrations along with members of the far left. I should note, some groups broke off in the end to fight one another afterwards. This is the pro-Kremlin lobby. /3

This article has good analysis of the types participating in the ludicrous "anti-war"/pro-genocide spectacle: "just one more logical step for a set of 'Left' gifters attempting to establish themselves among the far-Right" /4

IGD notes that the same leadership (Dore, Blumenthal, et al.) appeared at rallies organized by far-right orgs and leaders associated with the anti-vaxx movement. You can also track the Alt Right associations to the "Hands off Syria" events in 2018. /5

The continuing confab between white nationalists and tankies isn't a fluke based on temporary alignments; it's clearly a feature of their strategy to unite fringes based on a shared opposition to liberalism and an interest in an extended synthesis. /6

The Mises Caucus is, after all, not an inconvenient showup here but an organizer. These are Alt Right adjacent, hard-right libertarians whose board includes ppl like League of the South cofounder Tom Woods. /7

Dear Tom:
Thank you for your donation of $5000 in credit used on Tuesday, January 28, 2020. Antiwar.com is independently funded by readers, writers and readers who give their time. Regardless of which section of the war gets to go on, Antiwar.com continues to give its best as a fringe publication. We can do that because of you. You're the only person to do so before in credit for a $5000 donation or who we're @antiwar.com for the most part. We're always the better of you, millions and millions. All donations are tax deductible. Please keep us in your thoughts for 2020. God bless and every blessing.

2/16/23 Max Blumenthal: Why You Should Come to the Antiwar Rally in DC This Sunday

DESCRIPTION
Download Episode: Max Blumenthal joined Scott on Antiwar Radio this week to explain why you should accompany them and an impressive lineup of speakers at the Rage Against the War Machine rally in Washington DC this Sunday, February 19th. Scott and Blumenthal run through everyone who will be speaking, and highlight some Sister Rallies that will be held simultaneously for those who cannot make it to DC. They also address some of the sectarianism that threatens this coalition of leftists and libertarians. Finally, Blumenthal discusses some of the investigative projects and articles published recently at The Grayzone. Discussed on the show: RageAgainstWar.com; Rage Against the War Machine on Twitter; List of Sister Rallies; Declassified intelligence files expose inconvenient truths of Bosnian war; (The Grayzone) Zeleny's disports delegation led by economic hit-woman who led plunder of Ukraine; (The Grayzone) "From the 'Grogger' Wars' to 'America First'"; Nick Fuentes becomes a 'somebody' (The Grayzone); Director and writer of 'Killing Gaza,' Max Blumenthal is a senior editor of the Grayzone Project and the author 'Goliath, Republican Commanah and The 31 Day War.' Follow him on Twitter @MaxBlumenthal. This episode of the Scott Horton Show is sponsored by Tom Woods' Liberty Classroom. Email: scott@antiwar.com; Get Scott's interviews before anyone else! We have other LaRouchies like Garland Nixon. I found the "weaponization of rage" interesting given the context. LaRouche famously advocated theories that the English monarchy was responsible for international drug trafficking and antisemitic Rothschild conspiracy theories. /16

Weaponization of Rage

View full size

Schiller Institute
Garland Nixon

Veteran Washington, D.C.-based journalist Garland Nixon spoke next on the topic of "The Iago Syndrome: The Weaponization of Self-Destructive Rage in Ukraine." He began by posing the question "How did we get here?" and cited a recent poll indicating that an alarming number of Americans supported the war in Ukraine while knowing it could threaten nuclear war. Nixon masterfully described how psychological warfare is used either to create rage, or to manipulate existing rage for the purpose of causing working people to believe their interests align with those of the rich and powerful.

The creation of rage operates by convincing people that the leader of a country is evil. For example, there is no Syria, only the evil leader Assad; no Venezuela, only Maduro; never say Russia, only say Putin this or Putin that. According to Nixon, the oligarchs can then put this rage to geopolitical use by getting people to believe they're part of a gigantic crusade to stop this evil leader. In the case of Ukraine, rage already existed against Russia amongst the extremist Nazi faction. This rage has been bolstered by NATO pledging to support a holy war to smite the "evil Russians," at the expense of the Ukrainian people who are slaughtered and whose country is turned into a pile of trash. Despite the fact that it is "reckless to put all of humanity at risk for some neocon fantasy of eternal hegemony," as long as people believe they are united against evil they are willing to take that risk.

Nixon concluded that the only way to defeat this brainwashing is to get inside the heads of people and help them see that there is no justification for their rage and that it has been artificially created to manipulate them into going against their own interests.
