Gotta love the deference for "Germany. His homeland. The primary country of Europe" and "US is the real threat to German autonomy" as opposed to "fancies himself a "Ukrainian."".

This is beyond idiotic:

It's extremely disappointing, as I've not only attended, but spoken at this conference. And I've held professor Hoppe in high regard. I'm Ukrainian-American, and I lived in Ukraine for many years. What a disappointment.

- NATO Expansion? The US withdrew all its tanks from Germany in 2013, thinking they were no longer needed.
- The many millions of people of the intermediate and not neutral on this subject. They know the hell on earth that Moscow creates, and prioritize protecting themselves against those monsters. They WANTED NATO.
- Countries have joined and left NATO peacefully. By contrast, Warsaw Pact countries were invaded by Russia when they tried to leave.
- Who the hell talks about "members" of the Soviet Union? Post-Soviet countries were not "members", they were "prisoners".
- Why doesn't Hoppe apply just 1% of the scrutiny he gives to Western governments to Russia? They've stated their goals for genocide of Ukrainians in their propaganda channels, and have carried out many genocides in their histories - Assyrians, and others.
- There was no coup in Ukraine. We threw off a corrupt Russian puppet who stole elections and MURDERED protesters.
- The Donbas voted > 80% to join independent Ukraine in 1991. All polls showed that the majority were pro-Russian. 70% of 2014 refugees from Donbas fled to Ukraine. They include a handful of my friends and one former business partner.
- In Donbas, Russia used overwhelming violence against pro-Ukrainian protests in 2014. People were beaten and murdered by Russian thugs. There is no moral equivalence between the different sides.
- The Russian language was absolutely NOT outlawed in Ukraine. That is ridiculous, and completely untrue.
- Russia has been trying to annihilate Ukraine for 500 years.
- The Russians killed more people in Mariupol than were killed in Hiroshima. There is no equivalence between the American wars in the Middle East (which I've condemned and criticized elsewhere). Yes, the reaction against Russians (many of whom cherished the worst brutality) and against Putin was strong. I would hope it would be.
- The US never rubbled entire cities in Iraq. And we took extraordinary pains to avoid civilian casualties. I know. I was there.

Moreover, seems like you are changing the subject to "too Russia", but Hoppe's talk was not really about Russia but about the US and Germany.

[@N. Stephen Krawiec] The post on PFS website is titled "Hoppe on Germany, East and West, Russia/Ukraine, and US/NATO (PFS 2022)". Is that incorrect?

1 REPLY

N. Stephen Krawiec 3 days ago

[@Paul Weber] I don't know (but come up with it as a catch-all for the various topics included in the talk). It's not supposed to be "sarcasm" or anything. Notice the main title for both talks is "Striving to Understand Contemporary Germany—and Weep". Part 1 and 2. It's about Germany. His homeland. The primary country of Europe. And how the current situation, with US/NATO dominance, has and continues to distort things. Neighbors don't have sovereignty or excuse Russia's actions. That's ironic, but that was not his focus.

1 REPLY

Paul Weber 3 days ago

[@N. Stephen Krawiec] So Russia and Ukraine was one of the topics in this speech, so why can't Roman criticize Hoppe on that?

1 REPLY

N. Stephen Krawiec 3 days ago

[@Paul Weber] Ah, he is free to criticize. But his comments seem to be nitpicky or rationalistic, and basically make the point "Russia Bad". Hoppe never denied Russia Bad. His bigger point was that the US is the real threat to German autonomy here. It's hard to disagree with. I see this as someone who despises Russia and brings their invasion in international, illegal under international law. Pughish, etc. I also personally don't think NATO "threatened" Russia, though we did "encourage" them, and personally don't think NATO should exist or expand. Note also Roman just said he's "disappointed" but he never says exactly why, because here is not jumping onto the "defend Ukraine" bandwagon? Because he made a few trivial factual mistakes about Russia? But the talk was not about Russia and (not) the former "Soviet Union", at all, it's about Hoppe's own Russia about the danger of US/NATO to Europe/Germany/the world. In short, Roman's point seems self-absorbed and self-concerned, since he now fancies himself a "Ukrainian". Fine. I understand why Ukrainians want the west to go to the brink of nuclear war to save Ukraine. I don't understand why the west should care, though.

"Hoppe never denied Russia Bad." 🤔

Hoppe is the genius who suggested Ukrainians should just surrender because Russia and Ukraine are both corrupt states. 🙄🙄🙄

I.: And your point supports the argument that Putin can't say anything or even m a war, because he is afraid to lose support at home.

H.: Therefore, one must advise small states to pursue a strict policy of neutrality. arm themselves. It should not be without cost to attack them. Nevertheless, if yo to win a war against a foreign power, you have to consider surrendering, because corrupt gang is exchanged for another corrupt gang. For example, the Ukraine w Ukraine has been an exemplary democratic Western state. On corruption indices Russia. Vorwort zur deutschen Ausgabe

[Preface to German edition [Leipzig: Manuscriptum] of Democracy. The God That Failed (Demokratie. Der Gott, Der Keiner Ist), by Hans-Hermann Hoppe. More information at: www.HansHoppe.com]

Es erfüllt mich mit Genugtuung und Zuversicht, dass mein jüngstes Buch in Deutschland erscheint.

Dies ist nicht ganz so selbstverständlich wie es erscheinen mag; denn Deutschland ist kein freies Land. Es gibt in Deutschland nicht einmal Redefreiheit. Wer hier bestimmten regierungsamtlich vekuendeten Aussagen öffentlich widerspricht, wird eingekerkert. Und wer sich "politisch unkorrekt" aeußert, wird kaltgestellt und mundtot gemacht.

Seit einigen Jahren macht sich erstmals vernehmbar Widerspruch gegen diesen deprimierenden Zustand bemerkbar.¹

"Politisch korrekt" ist das, was die Herrscher und insbesondere die Sieger unter den Herrschern proklamieren. Der grosse Sieger des 20. Jahrhunderts, speziell im Hinblick auf Deutschland, sind die USA. Die USA haben darum die "korrekte" Interpretation vor allem der jüngeren Geschichte bestimmt. Das besiegte Deutschland wurde nicht nur besetzt, sondern auch umerzogen. Deutschlands Schulen und Universitaeten, unter nahezu totaler Kontrolle des Staates stehend, und die staatlich lizensierten Massenmedien verkuendeten und verkuenden bis heute die offiziell-offizioese amerikanische Sicht der Geschichte und insbesondere des 20. Jahrhunderts als eines Triumphs des Guten ueber das Boese.

Und doch werden nach mehr als fuenfzig Jahren Besatzung und Umerziehung in Deutschland wieder Themen und Sachverhalte oeffentlich eroertert, die nicht oder nur schwerlich in das amerikanische Weltbild passen und darum lange tabuisiert waren (im besiegten Deutschland mehr noch als in den siegreichen USA): der blutruenstige Beginn

Germany's former chancellor Gerhard Schröder was yesterday at the centre of damaging allegations of sleaze over his decision to accept a lucrative job with Russia's biggest company.

Opposition MPs joined forces to denounce Mr Schröder - who last week confirmed that he was to become chairman of state-controlled Russian giant Gazprom's North European Gas Pipeline company. Mr Schröder was accused of bringing German politics into disrepute and of "cronyism" and "corruption".

Mr Schröder signed the controversial pipeline deal for a $6bn (£3.4bn) gas link between Germany and Russia under the Baltic Sea with Russia's president, Vladimir Putin, just two weeks before leaving office.

Lost me at "the Ukraine", but imagine being so self-absorbed on Germany that you think this is about you. The only competitor anywhere near this level of stupidity could be his #Kremlinarian colleague Walter Block, who also thinks this is about Germany 🤪

The war in the Ukraine is the most recent and most dramatic and violent attempt at further advancing globalization, centralization and imperialism. The outcome of which is still very uncertain. It is also the latest demonstration of global elites to show in particular Germany (but also Western Europe and the EU) who is boss. In this they are being supported by elitist German collaborators and traitors.

Nuclear War?
By Walter E. Block
Ron Paul Institute
April 28, 2022

The Russians are a weird people. For some reason, known only to their bizarre selves, they object to German invasions of their country. And not only that: they have the inexplicable habit of strenuously opposing another such eventuality.

One might well have thought otherwise. After all, the Germans bring with them in their wake all sorts of salutary benefits: law and order, good government, peace (as long as their orders are followed), world class beer, wiener schnitzel, sauerkraut, great pretzels, luxury automobiles, magnificent music (it is hard to beat Johann Sebastian Bach!). What more could the Russians want?

Any rational country would be more than happy that the Germans offered them such benefits, not once but twice during the last century. Do you think the Russians were appreciative? No. They are a bunch of ingrates! Instead of being open for a third "visit" by the Germans, almost their entire foreign policy was dedicated to the principle of "never again." It sometimes seemed that it consisted of little more than to preclude a third benevolent appearance across their borders of their friends, the Germans.

Thus, they tried to set up a cordon sanitaire, a buffer zone, between them and their German buddies to the west.

If there were any justice in the world, Russia never would have entered the Ukraine. Instead, they would have declared war on all the member nations of NATO, all of them without exception. Thank God that there is no justice in this world. We should thank our lucky stars that Putin is a mensch. Otherwise, the very existence of the entire human race would have been put at high risk. Even now, the chances of a nuclear Armageddon are perhaps as strong as they ever were, since the Cuban missile crisis. (Amazingly, the US vociferously objected to the placing of enemy weaponry 90 miles from its shores.)

What has been the reaction of the US to the present blow-back against its decades-long policy? Unfortunately, both Democrats and Republicans, with but a few rare exceptions, have been rattling sabers, calling for all sorts of harm to the Russians. Do these people not realize what danger they place on all the rest of us, to say nothing of themselves, their children and grandchildren? Have they not yet learned the lesson that a nuclear conflagration can ruin our entire day?

What should happen now, if sanity is to return? Peace should once again reign, after a complete ceasefire. All troops should return to their home country. No other nation should supply Ukraine with weapons of any type or variety. This country should cease and desist from its attempt join NATO. That mischievous, nasty and malicious organization should be disbanded and salt sowed where once it stood.

Hans-Hermann Hoppe apparently gave a recent interview where he objected to the depiction of Germany as a villain in WWII, and claimed it was the product of an American reeducation campaign.

Do we need any more evidence that this guy is bad news?

Apart from their anticommunism, my parents, as most people of their generation, were highly guarded or even timid regarding political pronouncements. Germany had lost a devastating war, and the German population was subjected to a systematic, American-led reeducation campaign, a Charakterwaesche (character-wash), as I was to realize only many years later, of truly enormous proportions, which involved a complete rewriting of history from the victor's viewpoint, essentially portraying Germans as congenital villains. This made it all the more difficult to finally discover the fundamental importance of private property rights and the evil of statism and so-called public property.

In 1936 Spain had a General Francisco Franco willing to rise and lead a patriotic coalition of army units, Carlist traditionalists and monarchists, and conservative Catholics against a socialist/communist republic. In 1973 a General Augusto Pinochet was ready to lead a counter-revolution against the implanting of a Marxist dictatorship in Chile. Today there is no such force ready-made to lead a counter-revolution in the United States. The forces of the Progressivist Deep State have made sure of that.

We are on our own, perhaps headed to a catacomb far more desolate and dark and excruciating than anything our Christian ancestors suffered at the hands of an Emperor Nero or Diocletian. But persevere we must, with faith and determination, trusting in the Lord, while hoping like Charles Maurras in 1940 (with the advent in France of Vichy and Marshal Petain) for a "divine surprise."

History has a way of producing quirks and entirely unexpected happenings, whether it be a Lenin shipped back by the German High Command to Tsarist Russia in a boxcar to initiate a Communist Revolution that would come very close to conquering the world, or its ignominious end in 1991, "not with a bang, but a whimper."

For our republic to be recaptured and reborn its citizens must remember who we are. We must go forth, handicapped yes, but still into battle. Perhaps our future lies in secession or separation. Indeed, one thing I can agree with Abe Lincoln on is this: "A house divided against itself cannot stand." However that may be, our journey will most likely be painful.

Let us recall as we begin our arduous pilgrimage of restoration, even as King Alfred the Great in the remote marshes of Somersetshire (878 A.D.) began his re-conquest of Wessex and of England, another statement of Maurras: "For monarchy to work, one man must be wise. For democracy to work, a majority of the people must be wise. Which is more likely?"

Fascism—Borderless and Red

By Aleksandr Dugin

(1997)

There are, in the 20th century, only three ideologies that have managed to demonstrate that their principles are realistic in terms of their political-administrative implementation—these are liberalism, communism and fascism. As much as one may like to—it is impossible to name another model of society which would not be one of the forms of these ideologies and [which], at the same time, existed in reality. There are liberal countries, there are communist [countries] and there are fascist (nationalist) [countries]. Others are absent. And are impossible.
