In July 2021, Jackson Hinkle (21), YouTuber and Pro-Russian propagandist won the Serena Shin award. Cash prize.

Hinkle neglects to mention this on his Twitter account and I was curious. Why? Who else has won it?

2 Aside from Hinkle other winners of the Serena Shim award are

5 Greyzone writers, Max Blumenthal, Ben Norton, Aaron Mate, Kit Klarenberg. Greyzone started a month after Blumenthal visited Putin <https://mosaicmagazine.com/picks/israel-zionism/2019/08/max-blumenthals-progression-from-israel-hater-to-putin-shill/>

But then something happened. We don't know exactly what it was. All we know for certain is that in December 2015, Blumenthal traveled to Moscow—all expenses paid by the Kremlin—to attend a gala dinner, hosted by Vladimir Putin himself, to celebrate the tenth anniversary of RT, the international TV network owned by the Russian government. When he returned to the U.S., his position on Bashar al-Assad—and on U.S. intervention in Syria—had turned around completely.

Only a month after the RT bash, Blumenthal founded something called “The Grayzone Project,” which describes itself as “a news and politics website dedicated to original investigative journalism and analysis on war and empire.” Basically, however, Grayzone is a one-stop propaganda shop, devoted largely to pushing a pro-Assad line on Syria, a pro-regime line on Venezuela, a pro-Putin line on Russia, and a pro-Hamas line on Israel.

3 Others winning the award are a fascinating hotch porch of anti-Western, Pro Assad, Pro Iranian, Pro Putin activists and journalists.

Max Blumenthal who received $20,000. And Caitlin Johnstone, a pro Putin left wing extremist.

Caitlin Johnstone: Anatomy of a Far Left Conspiracy Nut

We take you inside the mind Caitlin Johnstone, a member of the far left movement dedicated to spreading vile conspiracy theories and atrocious journalism.

4 According to this article the source is a 'shadowy' org called AIPAC run by 9/11 conspiracy theorist Kamal Obeid.

An anti Israeli org sponsoring pro Assad, pro Palestinian groups.
